

Our Community Project

"At Jam n Bread musicians from different cultural traditions are invited to share a song or tune for all to jam along with. It will be a feast of the senses as we'll be baking fresh bread while we jam" shared Coordinator Ann Lehmann-Kuit.

I'm an event coordinator, musician, music therapist & educator. I coordinate Jam n Bread, an intergenerational series of free musical community gatherings. We feature musicians from different cultural backgrounds, and they share their culture and music in a relaxed jam format. When possible, we bake the bread of the culture we are featuring in the OCP wood-fired oven.

I am pretty passionate about celebrating cultural diversity. As a child, I lived in Zimbabwe and Norway before emigrating to Australia. As an adult, I lived in Spain for a year learning flamenco guitar. Rather than feeling like an outsider, I want for myself and others, a society that celebrates and embraces our cultural diversity. Jam n Bread is the perfect opportunity to do this.

I love that OCP is a positive, ethical, caring, big picture thinking organisation where I am celebrated for being myself.
